AMERICA'S TACTICS.

WHERE BRITISH GUNSBOYS DECEIVED?
R. B. Cunningham Graham has the following letter in the "St. James' Gazette":
It has been pointed out to me that you stated that my information concerning the decision of English gunners to Admiral Dewey's fleet needed confirmation. I distinctly stated to your representative that I was unable to give the name of my informant, but I am prepared to do so should an inquiry be addressed into the matter. It is quite evident from the recent Court-Martial in which a British seaman was dismissed the navy and sentenced to 18 months imprisonment for negotiating the sale of a signal-book, that some foreign Power or other not friendly to us has been endeavoring to treacherously get possession of information which would enable it to damage our fleet.
There are at present two Powers to whom such a signal-book could be of immediate value. These are Spain and America. The way in which Spain has conducted the war, and the absolute want of method she has shown in all her proceedings, preclude the idea that it could have been Spain. There only remains the United States of North America. Now, in my interview I set forth six occasions on which that Power has shown herself unfriendly to Great Britain.
Hitherto my statements have been unchallenged. I argue that it was impossible for a home-made alliance could ever be concluded between this country and the United States of North America. Should it prove to have been the latter Power which has tried to "convey" our signal-book, it surely adds another count to the long series of unfriendly actions on the part of America against this country.

PROTECTING CANADIAN GOODS.

The issue of the Adelaide (South Australia) Advertiser for June 14th, just received gives the particulars of a trial which took place even in that far country the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. is as active in defending its rights and protecting the public against the substitution of cheap and counterfeit articles as it is here at home in Canada. In the trial in question Frank Ashley and William Smith were charged with having offered a substitute for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, claiming that the substitute was the same as that justly celebrated medicine. Both men were placed under arrest on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences and conspiring to defraud the public, and evidence was given by the Chief Justice of the Criminal Court. The defendants' lawyer made a strong fight in their behalf, but in spite of this the jury returned a verdict of guilty in both cases. The Chief Justice deferred sentence until the close of the sittings. In answer to the charge of conspiracy, the learned judge spoke very strongly concerning the evils of substitution and the dangers to the victim that may ensue from this nefarious and too common practice. -Toronto Globe.

DEATH OF ARCHBISHOP WALSH.

Toronto, July 31-Archbishop Walsh died tonight very suddenly. He had been confined to his room for a few days from the effects of a recent accident, but the consequences were anticipated until ten o'clock to-night. He had been chatting with Mr. Eugene O'Shea, Chief Justice of the Court, when symptoms of heart failure became evident. Dr. Dwyer, of St. Michael's Hospital, was hastily summoned.
The Archbishop, however, rapidly sank and expired at twenty minutes to eleven o'clock in the presence of Dr. Dwyer, Dr. O'Keefe, and Father Walsh, his secretary.
When he realized death was near Archbishop Walsh asked for the last rites of the Church, and nominated Vicar-General McCann as administrator of the diocese.
Archbishop Walsh was born May 23, 1830, in the parish of Monaghan, county Kilkenny, Ireland, and was educated at St. John's College, Waterford, and the Grand Seminary, Montreal, he having come to Canada in April, 1852.
He received the tonsure from Bishop Larocque in 1853 and minor orders from Bishop Macdonell, Oshawa, where he was also the first resident pastor, and endured much hardship. In 1857 he was appointed to the charge of St. Mary's parish, Toronto, and in 1859 was promoted to the rectory of St. Michael's cathedral, being further promoted to the bishopric of the diocese in 1882. He visited Rome in 1891, and was received with marked attention by the Pope.
In 1892 Mrs. Walsh succeeded Bishop Pius as Bishop of Sandwich, subsequently removing the episcopal see to the city of London, the title of the see being changed accordingly. He did much important work in this diocese in the way of building churches, organizing as the natural successor to Archbishop Lynch in the archdiocese of Toronto and was appointed in August of that year, the installation taking place in St. Michael's cathedral on November 27.
Archbishop Walsh took no public part in the Manitoba school question and on most subjects adopted a cautious and conservative position.
The date for taking the plebiscite on the prohibition question is Sept. 29.

Was a Mere Skeleton!

Dr. Hennequin's

Infant Tablets

Saves Many Babies

Mrs. Louisa Grass, Watertown, N. Y., says:
Dr. Hennequin's Tablets have worked wonders for us. I believe it was the tablets that saved our little baby, two years of age. Doctors failed to succeed, the child was a mere skeleton, would not eat, could not sleep but before one bottle of Dr. Hennequin's Tablets were taken she began to brighten up and now at four years of age, is the picture of health.
Mrs. John Minardus, Bay City, Mich., says:
It is a pleasure to me to say that I believe Dr. Hennequin's Tablets is undoubtedly the finest medicine for children I have ever seen; as a worm medicine it acts most beautifully. I recommend it to all mothers as being reliable and nice. I would not try to bring up a baby without them if I could procure them.

THE PLEBISCITE.

Ottawa, July 31.-Thursday, the 29th of September, is the date fixed by the Government for the vote all over the Dominion on the subject of prohibition. The question to be submitted is as follows:—"Are you in favor of the passing of an Act prohibiting the importation, manufacture, or sale of spirits, wine, ale, beer, cider, and all other alcoholic liquors for use as beverages?" All Canadians qualified to vote at provincial elections will be called upon to vote on this question. To defray the expense of the plebiscite the sum of $250,000 was appropriated at last session of Parliament. The vote of each province will be counted, and the law calls for the printing of the provincial voters lists, as intended for Federal purposes, at Ottawa. The work has, however, not yet been commenced, consequently it is more than likely that the lists as printed for provincial purposes will have to be used. A large vote should be cast, as there were 1,333,735 names on the old Federal lists. These were divided among the several provinces as follows:-

Ontario.....	630,021
Quebec.....	351,075
New Scotia.....	111,124
New Brunswick.....	10,997
Prince Edward Island.....	25,245
Manitoba.....	65,684
North-West Territories.....	20,478
British Columbia.....	38,000

In four of the provinces there have already been popular votes on the liquor question. These provinces are Ontario, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, and Prince Edward Island. Manitoba was the first province to have a prohibition plebiscite. The voting took place there on July 29, 1892. In the following year, December 15th, 1893, Prince Edward Island voted. In 1894 Nova Scotia and Ontario went on the question, voting on March 15th, and the latter on June 10th. In every instance the result was in favour of prohibition. The votes recorded were as follows:-

	For	Against
Prohibition.	110,757	110,757
Ontario.....	122,407	110,757
Nova Scotia.....	43,750	12,355
Prince Edward Island 6,110	1,823	7,116
Manitoba.....	18,037	7,116
	271,008	132,150

Majority for prohibition, 128,858.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

MUNN & CO., 25 N. 3rd St., New York

A SNOWDROP

O wonderful, innocuous
White herald of the spring!
No winter can be so cruel
That hinders so sweet a thing!
Thou bringest forth with green,
Deep bluish tints of gold,
The world that hath such beauty
Can never more be old.

No shades of rusty light suffuse
Thy petals cool and pure,
The rusted shell and dew
Alone thy lips allure.

Thou art not frost of purple stains,
Nor fire of red hot light,
But silver as the silvery rain,
And touched with violet light.

And I, like thee, am the rose leaf,
All things bring to thee,
But knowing that thou wilt not be
So truly as I.

But, cloister'd from the world's wind's breath,
Now hanging in the air,
Will meet a lovely smile to death
When thy pure life is done.

HER GUARDSMAN.

In a small house in Clarges street a girl of 18 stood in her presentation dress, while her long three yards and a half of white satin train trailed behind her. A maid knelt on the ground, picking out here and there a leaf from the sprays of lilies of the valley.

Marjorie looked in the mirror and patted a rebellious curl. "I feel excited," she said to herself. "I feel like I am in a story, the country mouse being taken to court and a real live duke or earl falls in love with little mouse. I shall be in the midst of this, the happy scene of the novel, something really romantic could happen."

"You'll have to take the taskmaster, Love, into your bargain with fate, dear," said Mrs. Beauchamp. And Marjorie hid her face in her lovely head of lilies of the valley, white orchids and white violets, and her heart gave a quick throb.

There was a "somebody" there. Perhaps no belted earl nor starchy butler, but a handsome, sunburned face looked into hers, the mellow voice had whispered.

It was later on the same day, the carriages in endless strings down the mall, an eager crowd pressing close to all the windows, making their remarks freely.

"This waiting is very tiring," said Marjorie. "I am so hungry."

"The gates are opened. We shall soon be in my dear," said Lady Hamilton, taking a sip of sherry from a convenient flask. They had come now to the line of sentries, the guardsmen standing like statues.

The sunshine coming out in a great flash of splendor, and Marjorie, as looking through the glass windows, she was conscious of one of the guardsmen on duty watching her intently. His beardless almost hid his eyes and brow.

And she was dreaming or was there distant recognition in that soldier's glance? The sweeping brown mustache concealed his mouth. She looked at him again, the carriage moved forward, he smiled, and she dipped into a smiling response, impulsively she waved her hand.

"To whom, may I ask, were you bowing?" said Lady Hamilton severely.

"I recognized some one, auntie, in the crowd," faltered Marjorie.

And her aunt, noting the sudden rush of color and shining eyes, grew suspicious. "A man was the only cause for that kind of emotion," she thought sagely.

Marjorie almost forgot that floating look while making her bow to her majesty. But the guardsman did not intend she should forget. A brilliant scheme had entered his mind.

Truly, only a guardian scribbling away for dear life, in all the baronesses of baron surroundings, but he knew he had finished forever with the long, tedious marches. The pipelaying, the "barran" guard, need hear no longer the parade of Corporal Ferguson's feet, no more lonely watches in the tower, when the thought of Anne Boleyn's ghost to keep her company was not cheering.

Goodby to the jarring iron clanging, goodby to the jarring iron clanging, which had surrounded him for two years—years of stern discipline and hard training. He had come out of it.

And what was he writing, scheming love, full of ardent fervor? His last letter! A sweet little letter, scented delicately, lay next to his heart. This is my love, my dear, my dear, my dear.

"Do not lead me to do wrong or to deceive. You must let me tell my mother, and I am ready to face the future with you. I will meet you one again, but I can no longer keep it secret."

"Bad young man!" he chuckled, and Marjorie Beauchamp that same day received this epistle:

"Dear sweet Marjorie, companion of my thoughts and highest aspirations, when I saw you yesterday, I was determined fate should never sever me again. Darling, how good you have been to me, and I shall not try that loving hand another day. You are ever in my mind, my best thought, my love, and my one great longing is to win you for my very own."

She looked very sweet in her picture had covered with the mother's room, dressed for a walk.

"Mother," she said, going over to her and turning very pale; "mother, I cannot keep my secret from you any longer."

"A secret, dear child? Why, no, of course not," said Mrs. Beauchamp tenderly, and put out her hand.

I was so young, and he had a hard life in front of him. He had quailed with his uncle and was practically cast off. Mother, can't you guess? I have seen him again—I love him!

"The bright head was bowed and hot tears splashing down."

"Read this, mother. He wishes me to meet him today in the park, and he says he has some great news to tell me. He is better off."

"But what is he now, Marjorie?" "He is in the guards, mother."

"Oh, the guards! And the poor lady, bewildered. 'Then he must be very well off indeed.'"

"No, mother, no. He enlisted. He is only a corporal."

"Oh, mother, don't be horrified! I call him my pillar box, but he may be the bravest girl he knew to meet me, and after I did he would come and see you and explain. And I am so many times. And after all—" winding up her incoherent speech dramatically—"it isn't the coat that makes the man! And mother, may I go and meet him and bring him back?"

"Oh, Marjorie!" cried her poor mother, "what would you want say? I suppose I must consent to seeing him. He certainly wears a charming letter."

"In the face of everybody, not ashamed?" said Ferguson a little quizzically, as he and his sweetheart got up from their chairs in Rotten row. She looked up high shyly at the tall, handsome man.

"And now that you know everything, Marjorie, will you forgive my putting you to such a test?"

"I love you," she whispered, blushing. "But, oh, how glad mother will be!"

They were walking along gaily, she the perfection of dainty prettiness, tripping along at his side, many curious and even inquisitive glances following them.

"Look, Charlie," cried Marjorie, her face dimpling into mischievous laughter; "there's auntie just passed us, driving. Look! she's turning back to look at us. Oh, her face! Isn't it picture?"

"Mellie," she cried, "something too terrible has occurred. Your daughter—my niece—is out walking with a common soldier!"

"My dear Eliza, I can explain," faltered Marjorie. "Don't! Don't! Don't! I'm angry. The young man is on his way home now!"

"On his way now?" almost shrieked Lady Hamilton. "You are going to let a man in a red coat and white belt enter my house?"

"They heard a joyous little laugh. And Lady Hamilton rose to face them. Mrs. Beauchamp felt faint from emotion. What a relief! But when Marjorie wrote such a lovely letter? And a gleam of mirth in her eyes too. And the mother saw one of the finest looking fellows she had seen in her life fill up the doorway with his tall figure."

"Mother," he said, "I introduce you to my lover, the guardsman, and soon to be my husband—the Earl of Desart."

"Please forgive me, Mrs. Beauchamp," he said, "in a winning way. I claim my discharge, but only to take orders, though, in another service. It was here Marjorie's hand was clasped in his."

Lady Hamilton a year later presented the son and heir with a silver watch and a box of tin soldiers—Forget-Me-Not.

The seal which General Gordon used on all his writing was a signed white sheet of paper in Khartoum had a history which is narrated in the "Life of Chauncy Maples," missionary bishop of Likoma, east central Africa. While at the bishop stopped at the house of a friend named Floyer, of whom he writes:

Floyer had seen a great deal of General Gordon and showed me one very interesting letter the last he received before he was killed. It was interesting. Floyer had volunteered to keep Gordon a seal with his name in Arabic characters upon it. For this purpose he chose an old coin, which he partly melted and refashioned.

When the seal was completed, it was found that two words that had been on the coin were still legible. The words were in Arabic and signified "The Messenger."

Gordon noticed them and was much pleased. The last letter in question commented on them, saying he prayed he might always remember to be as the messenger of God to the Sudan people.

A PONY'S INTELLIGENCE. A correspondent writes from Abbotsford to Nature Notes: "The other day when we were on the beach, I heard a strange scratching sound, and then if some one were trying to turn the handle of the door. Our housemaid went and opened the door to see what it was, and there stood the baker's pony and cart. His master had left him in the road while he went to the next house, and the pony had turned round and himself tried to open the door. Of course we were much amused to hear what it was, and the door was shut again. The next minute came one loud, decided knock, evidently from the door knocker."

"I do not do you remember two years ago I went on a visit to our old cousin James. When I was there, I met a lovely girl, Constantine Ferguson. Do you remember my telling you how I helped nurse her? And now she has married Charlie Ferguson, had just arrived from Australia."

"Well, my child, what of it?" "I was only 18, mother, and he said

TWO MINUTES IN THE CLOUDS.

A letter came this morning for "Colonel Bo and for "Honorable," and the rest of it, you know.

I gathered from them fondly and pride was in the rest again.

It seemed to me that somehow I'd grown a foot or two. Since the first time had some in and then passed out of view.

I felt that I had risen to the thirty-third floor of human consciousness and that the world was a vast, vast, vast.

To be addressed as "Colonel"—ah, what a splendid thing! And "Honorable"—well, it was next to being a duke.

At least two men were learning to estimate my worth.

There was a fine beginning to echo round the earth.

I tore one letter open and read the message. The man who dubbed me "Colonel," I'll now confess to you.

Was a man of means of money—a common thing with us.

He'll be a great deal better if I could "lend him" it.

The other man was anxious to get a public place.

He would help him to "win out in the race."

I sent the letters from me. I thought some thing.

That never shall be printed—and went to work again.

—S. E. Kiser in Cleveland Leader.

HIS LETTERS.

We had been three months married, and lived in the blessed expectancy of a secretaryship which I had been promised on a commission appointed to inquire into some abuses the government did not want to find out, but the orielinaries dragged, and I found myself doomed to a period of enforced idleness, which did not improve my temper, and I fear my wife's sorely, for, though happy, we were human. Our first, and thank heaven, our only rift, took place in the garden. One day, when I was gardening on a plot of sort blackened ground attached to our modest dwelling. In making a border I had planted a number of carnations and petcoets together, contrary to my wife's directions, and on discovering the mistake she said what I suppose nine out of ten women would have said. I answered tartly, being preoccupied with bitter thoughts, and so acrimonious did our discussion become that Edith went into the house, and for some minutes refused to enter the childless of my conduct and followed to make it up. She was not in the little attics bonfire at the top of our mansion, so I descended to search for her.

Edith denied the implied honor. "Then is your state the more gracious?" she asked. "But your husband does, and that is the chief point. The servant told me he was at home." She looked just as splendid as ever and swept our modest little apartment with a scornful glance.

"Mother," she said, "I introduce you to my lover, the guardsman, and soon to be my husband—the Earl of Desart."

"Please forgive me, Mrs. Beauchamp," he said, "in a winning way. I claim my discharge, but only to take orders, though, in another service. It was here Marjorie's hand was clasped in his."

Lady Hamilton a year later presented the son and heir with a silver watch and a box of tin soldiers—Forget-Me-Not.

The seal which General Gordon used on all his writing was a signed white sheet of paper in Khartoum had a history which is narrated in the "Life of Chauncy Maples," missionary bishop of Likoma, east central Africa. While at the bishop stopped at the house of a friend named Floyer, of whom he writes:

Floyer had seen a great deal of General Gordon and showed me one very interesting letter the last he received before he was killed. It was interesting. Floyer had volunteered to keep Gordon a seal with his name in Arabic characters upon it. For this purpose he chose an old coin, which he partly melted and refashioned.

When the seal was completed, it was found that two words that had been on the coin were still legible. The words were in Arabic and signified "The Messenger."

with you over the hedge—I know it!"

"Oh, it symbolizes more," said Edith, but her tone was weaker. The thread had gone home, for the study of hydrostatics had been forced upon us of late.

"And what is that, pray?" demanded Arbuckle, leaning forward.

"To explain would be to insult your intelligence—and yourself," replied Edith. "But in carte, long in time!"

"Oh, I am not this skinned!" laughed Arbuckle.

"I made allowance," rejoined my wife.

Arbuckle's lips became a thin line of scarlet. Then they parted, and she smiled. I knew that she had always possessed a most unfeminine sense of humor, but I was not prepared for his assertion at this supreme moment.

The two women stood looking at each other across the table. Arbuckle's dazzling smile lighted her face, my wife's pale, yet never so beautiful, thoughtful, though never, enlivened by the contrast, I noted the lines of anxiety which had been creeping there during the past months, and I felt that I was looking at my own eyes.

The other gathered up her letters and began to shuffle them as one would a pack of cards.

"You are dying to read them!" she said.

My wife's voice said, "No." Her face was not so explicit.

"Here's one—it's poetry," continued Arbuckle. "It was written for a stage I remember. The Arbuckle book—you might have heard of it?"

"No, it must have been before my time," said Edith innocently.

"Possibly you came rather late in the day," retorted the other.

"But came to stay," answered my wife.

Arbuckle laughed. Edith put her hand upon the bell.

"I have been very patient," she said.

"You'll want all the patience you have in the good time coming," rejoined the other.

And you, what will your future be without my husband?" asked Edith.

"My future can take care of itself," cried Arbuckle, laughing a laugh short as the snap of a breaking sword blade.

"I'm a woman with a past, the sort of past which is a burden, and I have a future like you—I'd like to get something better than the burd of a rose."

"Using the bit," thought I.

My wife laughed sadly now. "You know the old adage," she said, "that the best husband is a reformed rake. Men's follies often serve as beacons to guide them past the other shoals and shallows of life. Experience enables them to appreciate things—it is a good thing for a man."

"And a useless one for a woman," answered Arbuckle, with a sudden change of tone. "It's like the poop light which shows the foam upon the sea that has just run aground."

"You're much good, when the mists are going by the board."

She gathered the letters together. Whatever had been her purpose in coming, I could see her grasp upon it was weak. At the moment the reflection of my own face in a mirror opposite, I was so ill pleased by the sight that I stole down stairs, hearing another laughing laugh and the tinkle of a bell as she went.

I returned to the garden and commenced to patiently dig up the border. Presently Blith came out also with an armful of plants she began to sort, singing a creaky song I much admired the words.

I went over to her. "I got those carnations up," I said, "but for the life of me I can't say which is which!"

She ran to the border. "Ah, you took so far too much trouble, dear," she said, "and after all your labor too! I'm so sorry." She pressed my arm, and the touch covered more than the words.

"But the line was not straight," I answered, with my eyes.

"We'll draw a straighter one now," said Edith, she whispered.

I passed my arm about her waist and kissed her. She put both her arms around my neck.

"My own dear," said I.

"You old goose," she whispered, biting my ear, "I saw you all the time!"

SAVE THE MOTHERS

Dodd's Kidney Pills Their Only Safety in Female Diseases.

You have seen a flower nipped by frost, fade and die in the flush of its beauty. That is how women die when attacked by any of the diseases peculiar to their sex.

Woman's burdens are woefully heavy. Her sufferings are agonizing. Her patience is strained. Disease preys upon her. The light dies out of her eyes, her steps become slow and dragging; she loses flesh; grows sallow, listless, droops like a flower. Then she dies. Her family is left to the cold mercy of the world.

"Mother's dead!" What a piteous phrase. What sufferings have been endured before it was used. Why should mothers, wives, sisters suffer so? They need not. Dodd's Kidney Pills will quickly and thoroughly cure all cases of Female Weakness. They never fail. They give health, strength, courage; a new lease of life.

Monster Demonstration

At Deseronto.

PRENTICE BOYS COMMEMORATE THE RELIEF OF DERRY.

On Friday, August 12th, a great demonstration was held in Deseronto, under the auspices of Victoria Lodge No. 9, P. A. B. B., on the two hundred and ninth anniversary of the relief of Derry.

Some time ago a capital committee was appointed to make arrangements, comprising W. J. Foster, James Stokes, J. Stevenson, Nicholas Sager, with E. M. Wallbridge, as chairman, and Luman Foote, as secretary, and so well did they do their work that Prentice Boys, Orangemen and kindred societies from all over the country and even from the United States were present to take part in the day's proceedings.

The 12th of August is a day of peculiar interest to Prentice Boys and Orangemen and it may not be amiss to say a word or two about Derry.

"Derry, the original name of Londonderry, is derived from Doire, the place of oaks." It was the origin of the monastery founded by Columba in 540.

From the ninth to the eleventh century the town was frequently in the possession of the Danes and was often burned and devastated, but they were finally driven from it by Murtagh O'Brien about the beginning of the twelfth century. In 1171 it was granted by Edward II. to Richard de Burge.

After the Irish Society of London obtained possession of it, it was in 1613 incorporated under the name of Londonderry. The fortifications which were begun in 1602, were completed in 1618 at a cost of nearly $9,000 ($14,000).

Charles II. was confined in 1692 by Charles II. From April 18, 1690, the protestants of the north defended themselves within its walls against James II. until the 12th of August following, when the siege was raised. The population of Londonderry is over 30,000.

From an early hour in the morning large crowds of people thronged into town from the surrounding country.

By noon all the hotel stables and sheds were filled to overflowing. It is estimated that over five thousand people were in town from outside points.

The steamer Ella Ross brought a large company of Protestants from Belfast on board. A heavily laden train from Tweed and points on the Bay of Quinte railway arrived at 10:35 a. m.

The grand procession with its many banners from Trenton and Belleville added several hundred to the multitude and the Columbian from Gannaque and Kingston brought over a thousand men.

The men were taxed to the utmost to provide meals for the crowds that besieged them and the stands and impromptu restaurants did a rushing business in solids and liquids.

Owing to one of the paddle wheels of the Columbian breaking down, she was late in arriving and consequently the forming of the procession was delayed for an hour and a half.

The procession formed in the Market Square at 2:30 p. m. and marched through the principal streets to the driving park.

Prentice Boys Orange Lodges and Lady True Blues, in all about twenty lodges, with four bands and many banners, comprised the procession, which was over half a mile long.

The order of procession was as follows: E. W. Quinn Band, intently, Derry (mounted); Nicholas Sager, Director of Ceremonies (mounted); Ulster Lodge, Lady True Blues (in two carriages); Maiden City Lodge No. 13, Belleville; Burlington Lodge No. 2, P. A. B. B.; Stella; Loyal Orange Lodge No. 375; Battle axe Drill Corps, Kingston; Life and Death Band, Kingston; Derry Lodge No. 1, P. A. B. B.; Kingston; Loyal Orange Lodge No. 400; Marshall; Carriage with speakers; King William; Victoria Lodge No. 9, P. A. B. B.; Deseronto; Belleville Band; Money-moore Lodge No. 84; Loyal Orange Lodge, Northport; Ebenezer Loyal Orange Lodge, Camden; Mount Joy No. 10, P. A. B. B.; Hamburg Loyal Orange Lodge; Forest Mills Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 124; Ennisfield, L. T. B.; Pictou; Derry Loyal Orange Lodge, Kingston; Pictou Citizens Band; Premier Ivanhoe Loyal Orange Lodge; Deseronto Citizens Band.

The banners, flags and regalia attracted much attention and admiration, especially that of Maiden City Lodge No. 10, of Belleville, as they, very deservedly, won the prize in the march past.

The judge's stand in the park was used as a platform for the speakers, and a large audience was soon circled around it, listening intently and applauding when some choice piece of rhetoric pleased them. Rev. G. H. Copeland, Deseronto, was chairman and in a very few words, referred to the lateness of the hour and the consequent need of brevity. He said that the charge he wanted to lay before them proved to them that he was in full sympathy with the spirit of the occasion and he was sure that they all felt within them that they had entered into a glorious heritage left by our forefathers. In the presence of their own kindred and true who were here to address them, he would defer his remarks to some other suitable occasion.

Rev. Mr. Oliver, Titchborne, Frontenac county, opened the proceedings with prayer.

Brother Goughy, of Stella, Amherst Island, was the first speaker. In his opening remarks he referred to the fact of this being his first visit to Deseronto, and said that he had heard of its enterprise and zeal and that the good impressions he had formed were confirmed. He complimented the committee on the success of their great undertaking, and referred to the improvement of Orange upon the day. He was strongly in favor of Prentice Boys and Orange Lodges and had no patience with protestants who were antagonistic to them and kindred societies. Why, he said, he, the pope, the head of a foreign church, can send a letter to the dignitaries of our government directing them how they shall act in regard to certain great questions in Canada? He has no right to do so. We should not recognize any foreign power in church or state in this country of ours. He said that no greater siege had ever been made than the siege of Derry. It was the siege of Jerusalem. He impressed on his hearers the duty that devolved upon them to make themselves acquainted with the principles of their orders.

Rev. Mr. Depeau, of Concession, who was the second speaker, said as he had to face the wind and his lungs being not over-strong he would not speak to any great length, nor give them a long speech. But while he had a fine address all ready for them, part in his pocket and part in his brain. He would content himself by saying a few plain, practical, and sensible words. He said that, and stated that they were distinctively a commemorative people. He had no popularity to lose. He would say that he was a Protestant. He believed in protestantism, and he believed in Orangemen, and he believed in a better Protestant if he were sworn Orangeman. He would gladly burn up all enmity between man and man, but believed in the spirit of Derry. He said that he was generations ago. He said, let the Protestants do as the Roman Catholics do, unite as one body and place upon their shields the emblem of religion. Let religion be the first aim and politics subservient to it. Our great purpose is to perpetuate the protestant religion and extend its benefits and blessings. They should close their lip against bad language, and against that great foe to Orangemen, strong drink, but not strong in defense with their religion. Let religion be the first aim and politics subservient to it. Our great purpose is to perpetuate the protestant religion and extend its benefits and blessings.

Prentice Boys Orange Lodges and Lady True Blues, in all about twenty lodges, with four bands and many banners, comprised the procession, which was over half a mile long.

The order of procession was as follows: E. W. Quinn Band, intently, Derry (mounted); Nicholas Sager, Director of Ceremonies (mounted); Ulster Lodge, Lady True Blues (in two carriages); Maiden City Lodge No. 13, Belleville; Burlington Lodge No. 2, P. A. B. B.; Stella; Loyal Orange Lodge No. 375; Battle axe Drill Corps, Kingston; Life and Death Band, Kingston; Derry Lodge No. 1, P. A. B. B.; Kingston; Loyal Orange Lodge No. 400; Marshall; Carriage with speakers; King William; Victoria Lodge No. 9, P. A. B. B.; Deseronto; Belleville Band; Money-moore Lodge No. 84; Loyal Orange Lodge, Northport; Ebenezer Loyal Orange Lodge, Camden; Mount Joy No. 10, P. A. B. B.; Hamburg Loyal Orange Lodge; Forest Mills Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 124; Ennisfield, L. T. B.; Pictou; Derry Loyal Orange Lodge, Kingston; Pictou Citizens Band; Premier Ivanhoe Loyal Orange Lodge; Deseronto Citizens Band.

The banners, flags and regalia attracted much attention and admiration, especially that of Maiden City Lodge No. 10, of Belleville, as they, very deservedly, won the prize in the march past.

The judge's stand in the park was used as a platform for the speakers, and a large audience was soon circled around it, listening intently and applauding when some choice piece of rhetoric pleased them. Rev. G. H. Copeland, Deseronto, was chairman and in a very few words, referred to the lateness of the hour and the consequent need of brevity. He said that the charge he wanted to lay before them proved to them that he was in full sympathy with the spirit of the occasion and he was sure that they all felt within them that they had entered into a glorious heritage left by our forefathers. In the presence of their own kindred and true who were here to address them, he would defer his remarks to some other suitable occasion.

Rev. Mr. Oliver, Titchborne, Frontenac county, opened the proceedings with prayer.

Brother Goughy, of Stella, Amherst Island, was the first speaker. In his opening remarks he referred to the fact of this being his first visit to Deseronto, and said that he had heard of its enterprise and zeal and that the good impressions he had formed were confirmed. He complimented the committee on the success of their great undertaking, and referred to the improvement of Orange upon the day. He was strongly in favor of Prentice Boys and Orange Lodges and had no patience with protestants who were antagonistic to them and kindred societies. Why, he said, he, the pope, the head of a foreign church, can send a letter to the dignitaries of our government directing them how they shall act in regard to certain great questions in Canada? He has no right to do so. We should not recognize any foreign power in church or state in this country of ours. He said that no greater siege had ever been made than the siege of Derry. It was the siege of Jerusalem. He impressed on his hearers the duty that devolved upon them to make themselves acquainted with the principles of their orders.

Rev. Mr. Depeau, of Concession, who was the second speaker, said as he had to face the wind and his lungs being not over-strong he would not speak to any great length, nor give them a long speech. But while he had a fine address all ready for them, part in his pocket and part in his brain. He would content himself by saying a few plain, practical, and sensible words. He said that, and stated that they were distinctively a commemorative people. He had no popularity to lose. He would say that he was a Protestant. He believed in protestantism, and he believed in Orangemen, and he believed in a better Protestant if he were sworn Orangeman. He would gladly burn up all enmity between man and man, but believed in the spirit of Derry. He said that he was generations ago. He said, let the Protestants do as the Roman Catholics do, unite as one body and place upon their shields the emblem of religion. Let religion be the first aim and politics subservient to it. Our great purpose is to perpetuate the protestant religion and extend its benefits and blessings. They should close their lip against bad language, and against that great foe to Orangemen, strong drink, but not strong in defense with their religion. Let religion be the first aim and politics subservient to it. Our great purpose is to perpetuate the protestant religion and extend its benefits and blessings.

From an early hour in the morning large crowds of people thronged into town from the surrounding country. By noon all the hotel stables and sheds were filled to overflowing. It is estimated that over five thousand people were in town from outside points. The steamer Ella Ross brought a large company of Protestants from Belfast on board. A heavily laden train from Tweed and points on the Bay of Quinte railway arrived at 10:35 a. m.

The grand procession with its many banners from Trenton and Belleville added several hundred to the multitude and the Columbian from Gannaque and Kingston brought over a thousand men. The men were taxed to the utmost to provide meals for the crowds that besieged them and the stands and impromptu restaurants did a rushing business in solids and liquids.

Owing to one of the paddle wheels of the Columbian breaking down, she was late in arriving and consequently the forming of the procession was delayed for an hour and a half. The procession formed in the Market Square at 2:30 p. m. and marched through the principal streets to the driving park.

BY-LAW NO.--

TO CLOSE UP A PORTION OF Second street in the Town of Deseronto and to exchange the portion of Second street so closed for a strip of land in block "G" in said Town of Deseronto.

Passed—1898. Whereas, by resolution of the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto, dated October 1st, 1897, it was agreed to exchange that part of Second street in the town of Deseronto lying south of the southerly line of Main street with the Rathbun Company, for a strip of land sixty six feet wide running along the westerly side of block "G" from Dundas street to Stanley avenue, extended for the purpose of creating a reservoir for the Water Works of said town on said strip of land and for the purpose of permitting the Rathbun Company to extend their wood distillery works across said part of said Second street and whereas all proper notices and advertisements have been given and all proper persons heard in connection with this By-law. Therefore the Council of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto do hereby enact as follows:

That that portion of Second street in the Town of Deseronto lying south of the southerly line of Main street be closed and stopped up as a public road.

That that portion of Second street in the Town of Deseronto lying south of the southerly line of Main street be exchanged with the Rathbun Company for a strip of land sixty six feet wide running along the westerly side of block "G" and extending from Dundas street to the southerly line of Stanley avenue extended and containing 1647 of an acre.

That the Mayor and Clerk of the Council of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto be and are hereby authorized and empowered to execute all deeds and documents necessary to give effect to this By-law by affixing their signatures and the official corporate seal of said corporation to such deeds and documents.

I hereby certify that the above is a By-law intended to be passed by the municipal Council of the Town of Deseronto after four meetings in this paper.

Hallo there! Have you seen Murphy's prize baking powder? Why not what is it? Well it's this, A. No. 1 baking powder.

HALSTON.

The dry weather still continues and water is getting pretty scarce, nearly all the water in the country are dry and farmers are kept busy drawing water.

Harvesting is all over and threshing has been going on for the past two weeks. Reports indicate the yield this year will be much larger than other years, especially is this the case with wheat, barley and rye, peas not so good, but a better quality.

Our school opened on Monday with a fairly good attendance.

Miss Annie McAvoy, Rochester, is home on a visit to her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Pitt spent Sunday the guest of her brother, Michael Farrell.

Miss Nellie Shannon took her departure for Hastings on Saturday last to re-open her school on Monday 15th.

The fruit crop promises to be a failure this year. Plums are not to be had and apples and pears are very scarce.

Miss Annie Shannon who passed the recent examination for Public School leaving, intends taking a course in the Belleville High school.

The hops in this locality look very well and will probably be a fair yield, but not so good as other years.

Harry Braddon and mother went to Read one day last week to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. P. Kegan.

Patrick Farrell and wife spent Sunday in London.

Joseph Cowan, Centerville, accompanied by his mother passed here on Saturday to take a trip to the Flower city to visit friends.

HALL & STUART,

Opera House Block, Deseronto.

Deseronto, Ont., August 9th, 1898

Owing to the Rathbun Company having decided to wind up their Big Store business, I beg to advise you that I intend carrying on the ordered clothing trade, on my own account, at the old quarters, in the Oliver block, Main Street, where I hope to meet all my old customers and all others who can appreciate up-to-date methods and a business like desire to give them value for their money.

The stock will be new and fresh, comprising all the latest novelties in English, French and Canadian Tweeds and cloths. We feel assured, that in design, quality and variety, it will appeal to the taste and intelligence of the most exacting.

Our facilities for manufacturing will be such that every customer may rely on prompt and satisfactory treatment.

Reflecting on past experience, we have decided to adopt a "strictly cash system," trusting that all may realize that this course will prove to the advantage of all concerned.

Respectfully Yours,

WM. STODDART.

CRIMINALS CAPTURED.

The Johnson Family of Counterfeiter at East in the Late's Catch—Caught on Canadian Soil.

Detroit, Aug. 16.—David Henry Johnson, the youngest of the four Johnson brothers, notorious counterfeiters, was arrested early yesterday morning at the house of Joseph J. Wetherill, farmer, living two miles from Blenheim, Essex County, Canada. Johnson was looked up at police headquarters at Windsor.

He was the third of the family to be arrested in this city within the week. Two of the other brothers, Charles and Edmund, were arrested here Friday. The fourth brother, John, alias "Shang," is in Kingston Penitentiary.

Young Johnson is known to the police and secret service as the most dangerous man in this country, and the whole family were arrested in their line. The man arrested yesterday eluded even suspicion for the last 10 years. The official secret service says there is positive proof that David Johnson, though only 35 years old, was the author of counterfeit bills, notes, and the authorities have been looking for the man who did this job ever since the bills first came into circulation. The bills in question are $5.00 notes, with heads of Hancock and Winfield. The counterfeit Hancock note came out 10 years ago. The difference between it and the original is in the signature and in the vignette. The discrepancy is so small that many experts have been fooled. The Windsor $2 note was issued Aug. 4, 1891, and the imitation was discovered in 1893.

The detective force of this city has been looking for evidence against the Johnsons for a long time. More than three months ago they went to work and the first point scored was the arrest of Charles Johnson, Saturday last, at the house in which David had been living was searched, and a hollow panel behind the base board behind panel was removed, touching a spring, and showing a small cabinet. Detectives found in the cabinet money, also between $5.00 and $10.00 in counterfeit notes. A letter was found in the house giving information of the death of Winfield of Blenheim, who is a relative of the Johnsons. Detroit officers, with Officer Mahoney, visited Blenheim, and Mahoney made the arrest. Johnson was very confident that he would finally be taken to Windsor, and says he will fight extradition to the last.

In searching the house of the other brothers, the officers found a large number of dies and colorings. The arrests are regarded as of the utmost importance. Washington authorities connected the Johnsons with a series of counterfeit notes, including $100 silver certificates, which are among the best counterfeits ever turned out. Tracing out the Johnsons gives them the appearance of having been used, Johnson is married and has two children. He lived in Detroit more than a year under the guise of a traveling agent.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Horse races and sports, Labor Day, Sept. 3rd.

Posters have been issued announcing the Deseronto Fair, Sept. 24th.

A rare occurrence this month—two full moons, one on the 1st and the other on the 21st.

The hearts of farmers, gardeners and horticulturists were gladdened on Tuesday by a fine rain.

John Barkley has had his residence on Centre street very neatly painted and otherwise improved in appearance.

The police magistrate has busy these days. If business keeps on as it has been lately the office will be no sine-cure.

There is a very sickly piece of boardwalk on the corner of George and Deseronto streets near Mr. Hogie's residence.

Residents on north St. George street complain of the large number of campy holes in the boardwalk north of Dundas street.

Do the shoe dealers in town pay the Corporation a commission for leaving the sidewalks sticking up in the sidewalk? If not they should.

A large number of visitors from Toronto and other points are expected at Foresters' Island Park. About two hundred and fifty will arrive tomorrow.

R. W. Davis residence presents a very attractive appearance. The exterior is painted in a very green.

Godfrey Colpitts evidently a believer in paint, he has been having his residence on West George street touched up and it is thereby greatly improved.

The steam yacht Vesta, of Hamilton, has been purchased by Dr. Oranville and will be used for the convenience of the Doctor's family and guests.

Nelson Morrison Jackson has been off on vacation this week. While the absence may suffer, the house and the water at Indian Point has been his delighted affections.

A number of Deseronto merchants have continued special prizes to be competed for in the Deseronto Agricultural Exhibition, at Stratford, on Saturday, Sept. 24th.

A report has been going the rounds of the news-press stating that Captain Nelson Morrison Jackson died at Deseronto on Friday last. This is untrue, he is dead at Pictou.

Prizes to the value of $575, will be competed for at the horse races on Wednesday. Handicappers will be given for boys and girls and the events in the programme of sports.

Mayor Rathbun and party of friends were out for a fishing excursion on Wednesday morning. They had a very successful day, and the fish were brought into activity by copious rainstorms.

Hastings Agricultural Association directors met Saturday, and it was decided that the association should not come to terms with the owners of the buildings and grounds at Fair here this fall.

Charles McLaughlin took in all the Deseronto Musical celebration and reported "all safe" on his return. His time on the stage before the band was superintending the United Workmen's demonstration at Pictou.

The funeral of the late James Settle took place today at 2 p.m. Religious services will be conducted at his late residence, Thomas St., by Rev. G. H. Copeland. The remains will be laid to rest in the Deseronto cemetery.

The freight and passenger business on the C. P. R. is not very brisk. The Winnipeg train which left Toronto on Wednesday, was in eight cars, making in all about ninety cars.

A very severe thunderstorm passed over the town in the early hours of Wednesday morning. It was accompanied by a half at 2 a.m. the thunder was continuous roll and flash upon flash of lightning followed each other without a break.

The London correspondent of the Aberdeen Journal says that Hon. Wm. Mulock, Postmaster-General of Canada, will be knighted, and will be honored by the title of Sir Wm. Mulock, M.P., so well known as an advocate of penny postage will be made a peer.

The attention of the health authorities might be given to an unusual infestation of the property of Wm. McKee, which should be filled up, some individual, who has been digging up the foundations, having deposited the carcass of a dead dog therein.

The east side of Brant street has been greatly improved by the moving of the sidewalk outside the trees. There will be a still greater improvement when the trees are removed in like manner and the sidewalk ditch covered by the sidewalk.

T. J. Naybor, with his usual activity, is bounding the horse races in the Deseronto Daily Labor day. Another article in the Folger and R. O. O. who took the Company.

The prize list of the Deseronto Fair on the 24th of September is very attractive. The exhibits are expected to be more numerous than in any previous year.

The most successful one in the annual of the Society. Secretary Macfarlane is working with all his might.

The grounds and buildings of the Deseronto Agricultural Society, at Shamondale have been greatly improved this year. A new building has been added which will add to the beauty of display of exhibits.

A grand concert will be held on the evening of the 24th of September at the Deseronto Agricultural Society.

The Rev. M. J. Britton who is a professional in the art of trimming fruit and shade trees is at present in town, and will take contract for that work in all parts of the county.

He has received testimonials from Kingston and many other places. Orders can be left at the office of the Rev. M. J. Britton.

The Rev. M. J. Britton who is in town last week, has been for some time in the city of Kingston, where he is a resident of Deseronto many years ago.

His labors for St. Mark's church are well known. He is a very good man, and is a very good man.

Mr. W. O. returned to town last week, after an extended bicycle tour of a week's duration. In the course of his trip he visited Belleville, Stoney Creek, and other places.

He has received testimonials from Kingston and many other places. Orders can be left at the office of the Rev. M. J. Britton.

The Mammoth Herald inserts this advertisement: "Found—A light-colored gentleman's coat with a pair of lady's kid gloves in pocket, on Beaver Creek road, Call at this office."

The ad is on a par with the merchant who advertised Black women's stockings and a pair of trousers for a steamer.

In another column will be found the report on winter wheat from the Agricultural College, Guelph. As about one-third of the wheat is now in the field, it is a very important report.

The vote was small, the business men only coming to take hold of the matter in earnest for the by-election.

The vote is 25 in and 350 out against.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH PICNIC AT MARYSVILLE.

"You a farmers of the country should give you a thousand dollars for holding your picnic, which was so much needed."

Quinn, at the residence of the Rev. Father, at Marysville, on Wednesday.

The picnic of St. Mary's Church, and indeed the storm proved to be of the most successful kind.

The dinner was a great success and the ladies of the congregation deserve a lot of credit for the success of the picnic.

The floral decorations adding much to the attractiveness. The band, after having played for an hour, gave a concert in the grove and a large contingent arrived by train.

52 BOILS

"Three years ago I was troubled with boils, and tried several remedies recommended by friends, but they were of no avail. I had FIFTY-TWO BOILS in all, and found nothing to give me relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. The first bottle I took made a complete cure and proved so very satisfactory that I have recommended B.B.B. to many of my friends who are troubled with such results." A. J. MUSTARD, Hyder, Man.

Any one troubled with Boils, Pimples, Rash, Ulcers, Sores, or any Chronic or Malignant Skin Disease, who wants a perfect cure, should use only

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

A Diagnosis.
Patient—Doctor, what does it mean when a man has sudden flashes of blood to his face and yet feels cold all over, with a creeping sensation around his scalp?
Doctor—Well, it means that he is going to have an ague or else that he is going to propose—Vim.

Finding His Level.
When he was but a callow youth, He learned in life to glory;
He hardly ever told the truth, When he could tell a story.
When he attained sufficient grace In telling lies infernal,
The devil offered him a place Upon a yellow journal.

This came to pass: The sky grew dark, A wondrous wind swept over the sea, And waves were tossed in a furious rage, And roared like devils in a frenzy.

Then loud above the crashing spray, The furious bill of storm's descent, A cry rang out that shook the stars— "A man is lost, a vessel wrecked!"

The heeling sea bore him afar, Their summits capped with alien foam, And sailing furthest in the wind, Forbade the ship in "stray" to come, And sailing furthest in the wind, Forbade the ship in "stray" to come.

The rushing waters in his ears, The man essayed to climb the steep, And fast and yielding hemmed him in, Between the waves and the steep, And fast and yielding hemmed him in, Between the waves and the steep.

And there he swam alone with death, Beneath the water-slogging clime, Between the waves and the steep, And there he swam alone with death, Beneath the water-slogging clime, Between the waves and the steep.

He turned his head and for a last Heart-catch, lingering look, A sun-kissed strand of yellow sand, A dimpling waste of white sea, A gleaming waste of white sea, A gleaming waste of white sea.

The latter narrow beach's wand Disturbed the summer harmony, And there he saw the sun and still, Unmoved, unknown, forever, Yet once he loved the temple's will, Creature of circumstance when—

"Whom do you think I saw driving with Gerald this morning?" asked Mrs. Morris, her great friend, the doctor's wife, as the two ladies were enjoying a cup of tea and the general gossip of the parish together one afternoon.

"Beatrice Harcourt," Mrs. Maynard answered promptly.

"Ah, you saw her, too, then. I must say I was astonished. It is well known that young Morton bears the character of being the fastest man in the neighborhood."

"I have long ceased to be surprised at anything Beatrice Harcourt does," the other lady answered significantly.

"If Mr. Kerwick does not mind, I do not see why any one else should trouble their heads about her eccentricities."

"Certainly not," Mrs. Morris agreed. "I really, Ross, she has laughing and talking in the most familiar manner, and Gerald was bending toward her until his face nearly touched hers."

"And that is our future wife's wife! Well, I shall take care my daughters do not see much of her," and Mrs. Maynard drew herself up with a kind of lofty indignation as some fresh visitors were shown into the room.

Poor Beatrice! Her numerous delinquencies were the result of many afterthoughts, and had been ever since she came to Hillchester, four years ago. She certainly was unlike other girls, for in addition to being a "blue stocking" and having taken her degree at Oxford, she had a most unusual interest in the working classes—not a mere ladylike interest, which contented itself with calling at their cottages with a few words of good advice and a track.

This came to pass: The sky grew dark, A wondrous wind swept over the sea, And waves were tossed in a furious rage, And roared like devils in a frenzy.

Then loud above the crashing spray, The furious bill of storm's descent, A cry rang out that shook the stars— "A man is lost, a vessel wrecked!"

The heeling sea bore him afar, Their summits capped with alien foam, And sailing furthest in the wind, Forbade the ship in "stray" to come, And sailing furthest in the wind, Forbade the ship in "stray" to come.

The rushing waters in his ears, The man essayed to climb the steep, And fast and yielding hemmed him in, Between the waves and the steep, And fast and yielding hemmed him in, Between the waves and the steep.

A PHILANTHROPIST.

"Whom do you think I saw driving with Gerald this morning?" asked Mrs. Morris, her great friend, the doctor's wife, as the two ladies were enjoying a cup of tea and the general gossip of the parish together one afternoon.

"Beatrice Harcourt," Mrs. Maynard answered promptly.

"Ah, you saw her, too, then. I must say I was astonished. It is well known that young Morton bears the character of being the fastest man in the neighborhood."

"I have long ceased to be surprised at anything Beatrice Harcourt does," the other lady answered significantly.

"If Mr. Kerwick does not mind, I do not see why any one else should trouble their heads about her eccentricities."

"Certainly not," Mrs. Morris agreed. "I really, Ross, she has laughing and talking in the most familiar manner, and Gerald was bending toward her until his face nearly touched hers."

"And that is our future wife's wife! Well, I shall take care my daughters do not see much of her," and Mrs. Maynard drew herself up with a kind of lofty indignation as some fresh visitors were shown into the room.

Poor Beatrice! Her numerous delinquencies were the result of many afterthoughts, and had been ever since she came to Hillchester, four years ago. She certainly was unlike other girls, for in addition to being a "blue stocking" and having taken her degree at Oxford, she had a most unusual interest in the working classes—not a mere ladylike interest, which contented itself with calling at their cottages with a few words of good advice and a track.

Deseronto, Ont., August 9th, 1898

Owing to the Rathboun Company having decided to wind up their Big Store business, I beg to advise you that I intend carrying on the ordered clothing trade, on my own account, at the old quarters, in the Oliver block, Main Street, where I hope to meet all my old customers and all others who can appreciate up-to-date methods and a business like desire to give them value for their money.

The stock will be new and fresh, comprising all the latest novelties in English, French and Canadian Tweeds and cloths. We feel assured, that in design, quality and variety, it will appeal to the taste and intelligence of the most exacting.

Our facilities for manufacturing will be such that every customer may rely on prompt and satisfactory treatment.

Reflecting on past experience, we have decided to adopt a "strictly cash system," trusting that all may realize that this course will prove to the advantage of all concerned.

Respectfully Yours,

WM. STODDART.

Consumption

Will SCOTT'S EMULSION cure consumption? Yes and no. Will it cure every case? No. What cases will it cure? Those in their earlier stages, especially in young people. We make no exaggerated claims, but we have positive evidence that the early use of of Cod-liver oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda in these cases results in a positive cure to a large number. In advanced cases, however, where a cure is impossible, this well-known remedy should be relied upon to prolong life surprisingly.

SHOOTING TRAGEDY.

AN INSANE GIRL AT NEWMARKET SHOOTERS HER SISTER.

Father Than Be Parted From Her by Marriage the Mad Girl Shot Four Bullets into the Body of the One She Loved Best in the World.

Newmarket, Ont., Aug. 23.—An awful tragedy was played here yesterday morning about 7 o'clock, when Minnie Sexton deliberately shot four calibre .38 Smith & Wesson bullets into the body of her sister, Susan Sexton, killing her instantly.

Both girls were orphans, and lived together, while Minnie was preparing to go to school at the West end at the time.

James Farbridge was passing the house when the shots were fired, and hearing joyful laughter from the house, thought the sisters were amusing themselves.

Minnie dashed forward and was met by her sister, who told her what she had done. Mr. Widdell at once started for the house, accompanied by the girl.

On his arrival he found that the girl's story was only too true. Susan Sexton was lying on the floor dead.

Minnie was at one time incarcerated in an asylum for the insane, and it has been noticed for some time past that she was acting rather strangely.

No particular attention was paid to the fact, however, as the girl was believed to be harmless. The mad woman was about 33 years old, and had been married shortly.

Minnie, however, was violently opposed to her sister's marriage, and had been heard to declare that she would shoot her to death. Minnie is now in charge of the police.

COULD NOT BELIEVE IT.

Compelled to Do the Deed by an Uncontrollable Impulse.

Newmarket, Aug. 23.—"I could not help it; I was compelled to do it by some impulse," remarked the murderous culprit, who told some of the neighbors of the dreadful tragedy.

While the two girls were engaged in their household avocations, Minnie and Susan were in the kitchen, and ran upstairs, where she secured a revolver that was kept in the house.

Returning to the kitchen, she placed the revolver on the table, and then Susan fell back on the floor, when Minnie deliberately fired three shots into her breast, killing her instantly.

When the deed was committed, she placed the revolver on the kitchen table, walked composedly to the office of Mr. W. Widdell, and told him what she had done.

She laughed while explaining how she shot her sister, and did not in any way seem to realize the terrible position in which she was placed.

The Love of the Sister.

It is said that the love of the two girls for each other was touching, they being very seldom apart if they could help it.

Minnie, who was never far from her sister's side, and pulled the trigger. Susan fell back on the floor, when Minnie deliberately fired three shots into her breast, killing her instantly.
